Dear Parishioners,

“Be kind to one another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, as God in Christ has forgiven you” (Eph 4:32)

Giving an amnesty to one another, forgiving one another totally and each day, we can grow in the kindness that mirrors God’s mercy to us.

There is nothing more wonderful than hearing someone say to you: ‘I love you.’ When someone loves us we don’t feel alone, we walk secure, we are able also to face difficulties and critical situations. If then our being loved becomes mutual, hope and trust are reinforced, and we feel protected. We all know that children, to grow well, need to be surrounded by an environment that is full of love, and to have someone who loves them. But this is true at any age. For this reason the scripture from Ephesians invites us to be ‘kind’ to one another, which is to say to love one another, and it gives God himself as a model.

It is precisely his example that reminds us that loving one another is not mere sentiment. It is an extremely concrete and demanding ‘desire for the good of the other’. In Jesus, God has come close to the sick and the poor, has felt compassion for the crowds, has had mercy on sinners, and has forgiven those who crucified him.

For us, too, wanting the good of others means listening to them, showing them sincere attention, sharing their joys and trials, taking care of them, walking with them along their way. The other person is never a stranger, but a brother or sister who belongs to me, who I wish to serve. The exact opposite of what happens when we see others as rivals, competitors, enemies, to the point of wanting their harm, to the point of crushing them, even eliminating them, as sadly we are told in the news happens day by day. Even though we may not go so far, don’t we also accumulate grudges, distrust, hostility or simple indifference towards persons who have hurt us or who we find unpleasant or who do not belong to our social circle?

Wanting the good of one another, scripture teaches us, means following the path of mercy, ready to forgive one another every time we slip up. Dust gathers can gather in every relationship, especially when we realize the shortcomings, the imperfections, of the others and we judge them, so that mutual love grows cold.

If this is the situation, I would like to suggest a “pact of mercy”. Every morning, decide to see person – spouse, family members, friends or acquaintances – as new, as really new, without remembering at all the other’s flaws, the other’s defects, but covering everything with love. It is a matter of meeting everyone with this complete amnesty in our hearts, with this universal pardon. It is a powerful commitment, taken by all of us together, that helps us always to be the first in loving, in imitation of God who is merciful, who forgives and forgets.

Fr. Jesse Garcia & Fr. Fabio Ciardi

Queridos Feligreses,

“Sed buenos, comprensivos, perdonándoos unos a otros como Dios os perdonó en Cristo” (Ef 4, 32).

Es algo muy bello oír a alguien decirnos: “Te quiero.” Cuando alguien nos quiere, no nos sentimos solos, caminamos seguros, podemos afrontar incluso dificultades y situaciones críticas. Si además el quererse se vuelve recíproco, la esperanza y la confianza se refuerzan, nos sentimos protegidos. Todos sabemos que para crecer bien, los niños necesitan estar rodeados de amor, de alguien que los quiera. Pero esto es cierto a cualquier edad. Por eso la Palabra de vida nos invita a ser “buenos” los unos con los otros, o sea, a querernos; y nos pone de modelo a Dios mismo.

Precisamente su ejemplo nos recuerda que quererse no es un mero sentimiento; es un “querer el bien del otro” muy concreto y exigente. En Jesús, Dios se acercó a los enfermos y a los pobres, sintió compasión por la multitud, tuvo misericordia con los pecadores y perdonó a quienes lo habían crucificado.

También para nosotros querer el bien del otro significa escucharlo, demostrarle una atención sincera, compartir sus alegrías y sus pruebas, preocuparse de él, acompañarlo en su camino. El otro no es nunca un extraño, sino un hermano, una hermana que es parte de mí, a quien quiero servir. Todo lo contrario de lo que sucede cuando percibimos al otro como un rival, un competidor, un enemigo, y llegamos a desearle el mal, a machacarlo, a eliminarlo incluso, tal como, por desgracia, nos cuentan las crónicas de cada día. Aun sin llegar a tanto, ¿no nos sucede también a nosotros que acumulamos rencor, desconfianza, hostilidad o simplemente indiferencia o desinterés hacia personas que nos han perjudicado, que nos resultan antipáticas o que no pertenecen a nuestro círculo social?

Querer el bien los unos de los otros – nos enseña la escritura – significa tomar el camino de la misericordia, dispuestos a perdonarnos cada vez que nos equivocamos. En nuestras relaciones, puede depositarse polvo, y la unidad puede languidecer. Ocurre, por ejemplo, cuando nos damos cuenta de los defectos e imperfecciones de los demás y los juzgamos, de modo que el amor recíproco se enfría.

Para reaccionar a esta situación, es importante hacer un “pacto de misericordia.” Decidir ver cada mañana al prójimo con quien nos encontramos – esposo/a, familiares, amigos y conocidos – verlos nuevos, totalmente nuevos, sin recordar en absoluto sus tachas ni sus defectos, sino cubriéndolo todo con el amor. Y acercarnos a todos con una amnistía completa del corazón, con un perdón universal. Es un compromiso fuerte, que adquirimos todos juntos y que nos ayuda a ser siempre los primeros en amar, a imitación de Dios misericordioso, el cual perdona y olvida.
